Where the views come from. Mobile Maps delivers 2,087 of the 2,758 views — 76% of all discovery. Mobile Search adds 381, desktop Search 149, desktop Maps 141. This is a phone-first, map-first audience: people searching for a venue while they are out, or pulling up the location on the way to an event.

These totals are a floor. Google's profile reporting runs several days behind, and 29–31 August had not landed at the time of this report. The final August figures will come in higher than what is shown here.

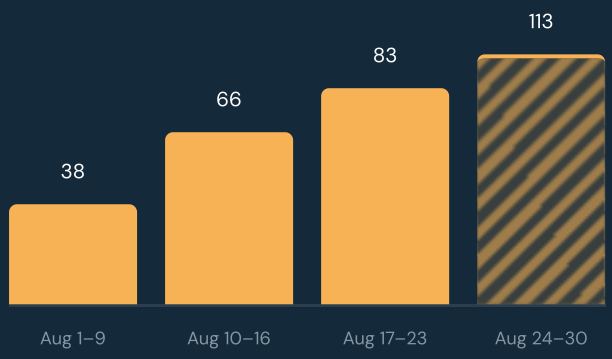

02 · TREND

Intent tripled across the month

Direction requests — the clearest signal that someone intends to actually show up — climbed every single week of August.

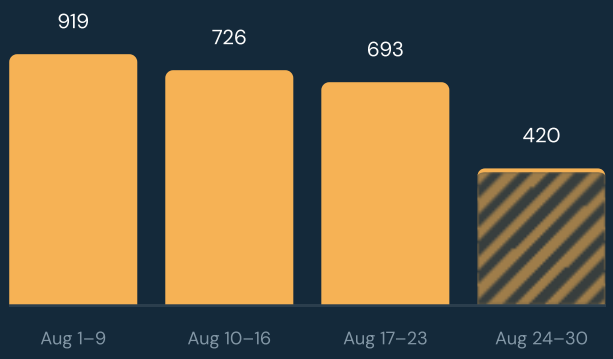

Direction requests by week

People routing to 251 Main St

Profile views by week

Search + Maps impressions

38 → 66 → 83 → 113. Direction requests roughly tripled from the first week of August to the last, four consecutive weeks of growth. The profile is reaching a better-qualified audience: fewer casual impressions, far more people who look up the venue and then route to it.

The hatched final bars cover 24–30 August, where Google has not finished reporting — both figures will rise.

Keyword positions

Where the profile sits in Google's local results for each tracked term, from the position-map scan run on 31 August. Visibility is a 0–100 score for how broadly the business appears across the mapped area.

Scheduled next. A holiday-party campaign is queued for 9 September, promoting the Theater → Lounge → Rooftop flow with a booking call to action, ahead of the Q4 booking season.

08 · MARKET

What competitors did

Changes the audit detected on other Los Angeles venues during the final week of August, and the ranking movement that followed.

VENUE	WHAT CHANGED	POSITION
Avana Venue	Reordered categories to Banquet hall, Event venue, Wedding venue	119 → 76
Social Space For Events	Renamed category from "Events Venue" to "Event venue"	51 → 36
The Hill LA	Reordered categories and increased image count	317 → 192

The pattern across all three: category changes moved rankings more than content did. Matching a category name to Google's exact taxonomy, and changing the order categories are listed in, each preceded a large jump. The Hill LA paired reordering with more images and moved furthest. All three are still ranked well below The Kult LA's position on the terms they compete for.

09 · METHOD

About these numbers

Sources. This report combines four data sets for 1–31 August 2026: discovery and engagement figures reported directly by Google; keyword positions and competitor movement from our local rank monitoring, scanned 31 August; content and reputation records from the venue's published activity; and conversation and contact figures from the venue's enquiry inbox.

Profile views is the sum of four Google surfaces: mobile Maps, mobile Search, desktop Maps and desktop Search.

Reporting lag. Google had not reported activity for 29–31 August at the time of the pull. Views, direction requests, calls and website clicks are floors — the settled totals will be higher.

Position and visibility come from position-map scans across the mapped service area, not from a single-point search. Visibility is a 0–100 score for how broadly the profile appears across that area.

BOTTOM LINE

The profile is converting better every week, and the capture system to catch it is now live.

Direction requests tripled across August — 38 to 113 over four consecutive weeks of growth — while the venue held fourth place locally for film screenings, its strongest and most defensible position. Content ran at near-daily cadence with 32 live posts and zero failures. The review backlog closed to 21 of 32 answered with the rating steady at 4.7 and no new negative review in six months. And in the last eleven days of the month, four capture channels came online and pulled in 15 conversations and 19 contacts — turning search visibility into enquiries the venue can actually book.
